The sharp director with her pure and thoroughly brilliant economy of expression has wrapped up the Fifties for us. —Action Magazine

"I would never indulge in what has come to be known as the woman's right to change her mind. As soon as I get a script I go to work on it. I study and prepare and when time comes to shoot, my mind is made up and I go ahead".

OUTRAGE Released 1950, Running Time 75 minutes.
Cast: Mala Powers, Robert Clarke, Hal March, Tod Andrews
Raymond Bond, Rita Lupino

It is a pix that every parent, as well as every woman should see. The story hits home. She literally puts the audience through a mental wringer as she builds suspense and drama.

HARD, FAST AND BEAUTIFUL Released 1951, Running time 76 minutes. Cast: Claire Trevor, Sally Forrest, Robert Clarke, Carelton Young, Kenni Kenneth Patterson, Marcella Cisney

The same combination of mercenary mother love, phony amaturism and outright commercialism on the courts has been worked into a first rate drama of greed under the guise of sports.

THE BIGAMIST Released 1953. Running time: 67 minutes
Cast: Joan Fontaine, Edmond O'Brien, Ida Lupino, Edmund Gwenn
Singular perception and skillful compactness. This fragile director fills the action with such mounting tension, muted compassion and sharklike alacrity for behavior detail that the viewer may feel he is eavesdropping on the excellent dialogue.
