The Fetishist

Animated by Dr. Freud

Total Running Time: 95 min., order to be announced

You may want to schedule an extra hour with your shrink after watching this brain-shaking collection of adult animated films.

Keep in a Dry Place and Away from Children

GGA Certificate of Merit, Animation

An exceptionally ugly baby escapes from his crib/prison and makes his way across a squalid, dangerously toy-strewn room. (Martin Davies & Andy Brown, England 1997, 10 min.)

Linear Dreams GGA Certificate of Merit, Animation

A sensuous journey into and out of the very emulsion that movies are made of. Light and color spins and sputters out of the darkness in an abstract Rorschachian display. (Richard Reeves, Canada 1997, 7 min.)

The Fetishist GGA Golden Spire, Animation

Get a firm grip on your mental health. This stark and spectacularly creepy story of the life of a very troubled young man will nail you to your seat and make you run shrieking from the theater. (Jim Trainor, USA 1997, 38 min.)

Geri's Game

In this latest breakthrough in computer-generated animation from Pixar, a remarkably lifelike sly old geezer outsmarts himself in a one-man outdoor chess game. (Jan Pinkava, USA 1997, 4 min.)

Yours

A vintage musical featurette is processed through a dense, collage-like scrim of cut-outs and colors. (Jeff Scher, USA 1997, 6 min.)

Calendar the Siamese

The bizarre story of a down-and-out musician who, for the promise of enough money for a whole year of composing, sells a slice of his own liver to a shady character representing the "biological black market." (Lewis Klahr, USA 1997, 30 min.)
