"Mikio Naruse's next-to-last film stars his most reliable actress Hideko Takamine and features a script written by her husband, Zenzo Matsuyama. The story deals with an automobile accident, a rampant and rapidly increasing phenomenon in Japan at the time, and the anguish of a poor widow who loses her only son through a wealthy housewife's recklessness on return from a tryst with her boyfriend. The widow accepts financial compensation from the family chauffeur who is forced to take responsibility, but gradually she learns the truth and seeks revenge. But the cornered housewife, rejected by both boyfriend and husband over the incident, takes her own life before the widow can carry out her plans." -Aldie Bock
