MICKEY MOUSE spreads stardust from his fingertips when he portrays "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" in one of the musical segments of Walt Disney's 1940 animated classic, "Fantasia," which is now playing at the Castro and other Bay Area theaters. Eight different pieces of classical music — by Bach, Beethoven, Tchaikovsky, Dukas, Stravinsky, Ponchielli, Moussorgsky and Schubert — have been interpreted by animators into comedy and mood sequences. The music was performed by Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra.
