Colin Clive plays one of the most despicable and insanely jealous husbands in moviedom. His wife, Jean Arthur, falls in love with a romantic headwaiter (Charles Boyer) at a plush restaurant. The fiendish shipping magnate husband murders a man and plants the evidence on Boyer, with the object of blackmail. This fine romantic suspense yarn travels from Paris to New York and ends up on an ocean liner which has crashed into an iceberg in the Northern Atlantic. You'll find this is definitely a "two hankie" film, but it all ends well. -KP

"... a profound expression of Borzage's commitment to love over probability." -Andrew Sarris,
