Sea Mystery To Open Here

(Advance)

One of the screen's most gripping sea mysteries, "Destination Inner Space," opens here..... at the.....theatre with Scott Brady, Sheree North, Gary Merrill and Mike Road starred.

The Arthur C. Pierce screenplay in color deals with the efforts of civilian scientists aided by a navy commander to identify a mysterious, powered and moving underwater craft and then capture a man-like monster which emerges from it to terrorize the scientific party. A love affair is interwoven in the plot.

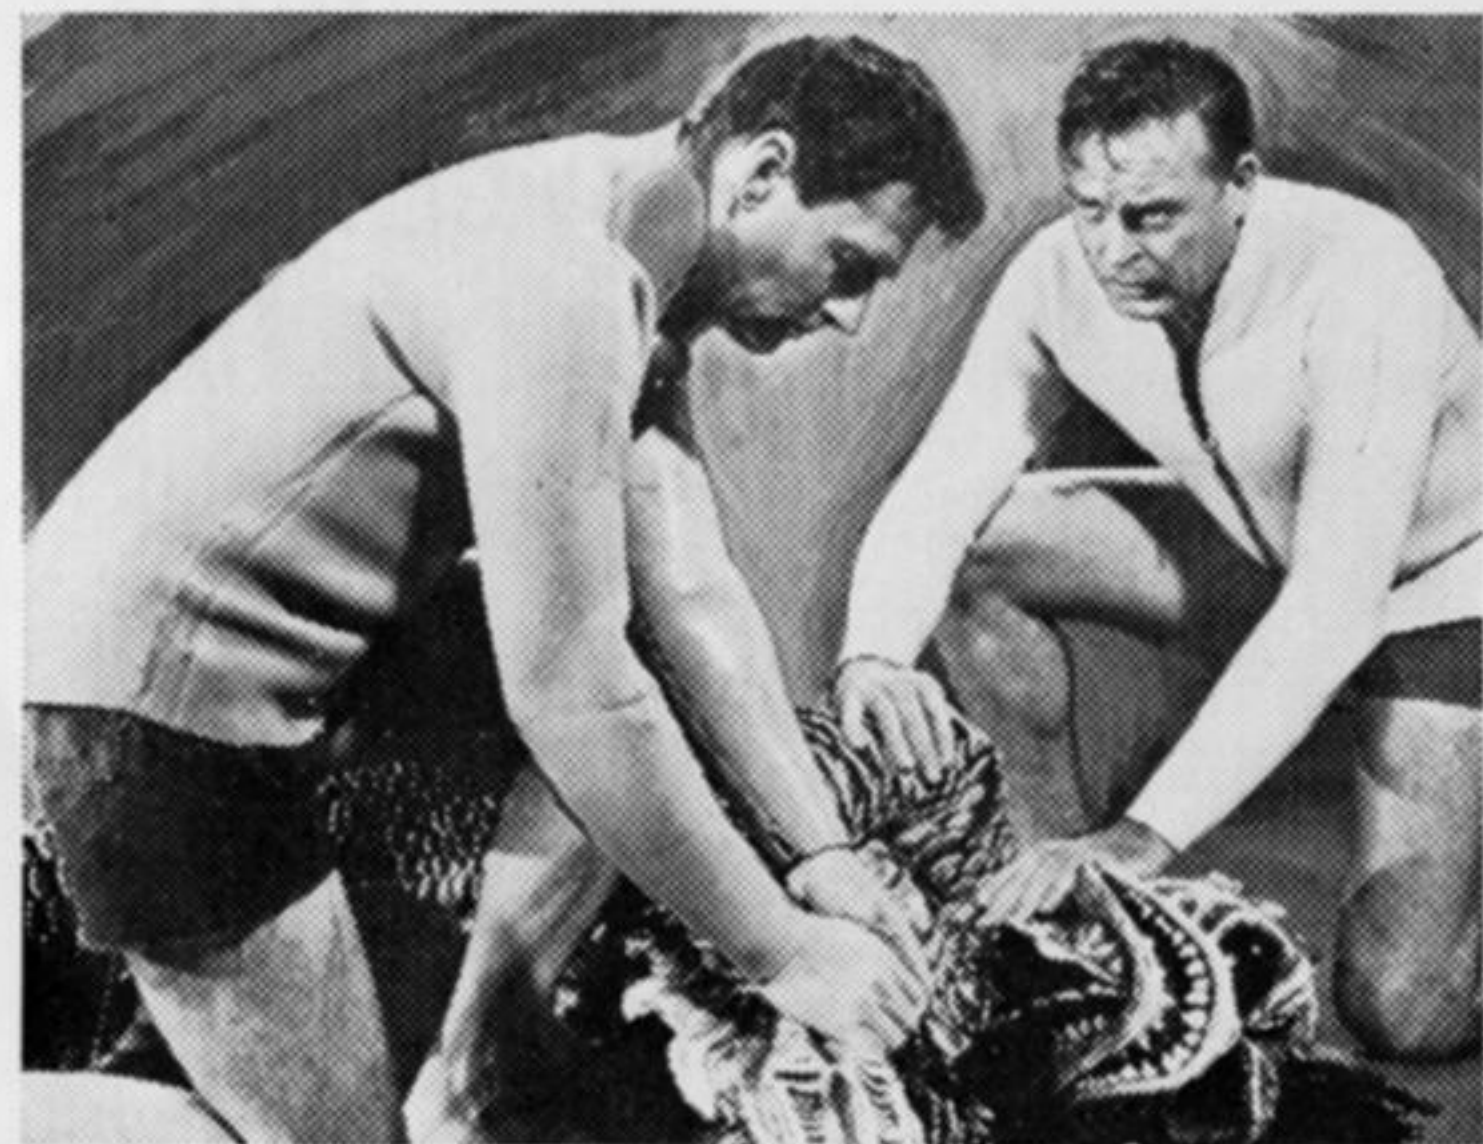

The film was produced by Earle Lyon and directed by Francis D. Lyon for United Pictures Corporation which presents it in association with Harold Goldman Associates, Inc. It is being released by Magna Pictures Distribution Corporation.

Sheree North Stars In Film

Sheree North, one of Hollywood's most dazzling beauties, shares star honors with Scott Brady, Gary Merrill and Mike Road in "Destination Inner Space," undersea thriller now at the.....theatre.

She portrays a marine photographer in this film involving the search for a mysterious underwater craft, yet finds time to engage in a love affair with young Road. Brady is cast as a Navy commander and Merrill is seen as a scientist.

The color film was directed by Francis D. Lyon and produced by Earle Lyon for United Pictures Corporation which presents it in association with Harold Goldman Associates, Inc. It is being released by Magna Pictures Distribution Corporation.

Brady Turns Back Pages

Going into "Destination Inner Space" in which he toplines the cast was a bit like turn-paging for Scott Brady. In the science fiction-sea mystery, now at the.....theatre, he portrays a United States Navy commander.

Brady's entrance into acting, first on the stage and later in motion pictures, came about after he had served a hitch in Uncle Sam's Navy during World War II.

The ruggedly handsome star, born Jerry Tierney in New York, did a number of jobs before settling on acting as a career. Among them were lumber-jacking in the Maine woods and working as a life guard on Southern California beaches. His first film was "Underwater Girl."

Starred with him in his current film are Gary Merrill, Sheree North, Wende Wagner and Mike Road. Released by Magna Pictures Distribution Corporation, the color film was produced by Earle Lyon for United Pictures Corporation which presents it in association with Harold Goldman Associates, Inc.

Two Thrillers To Show Here

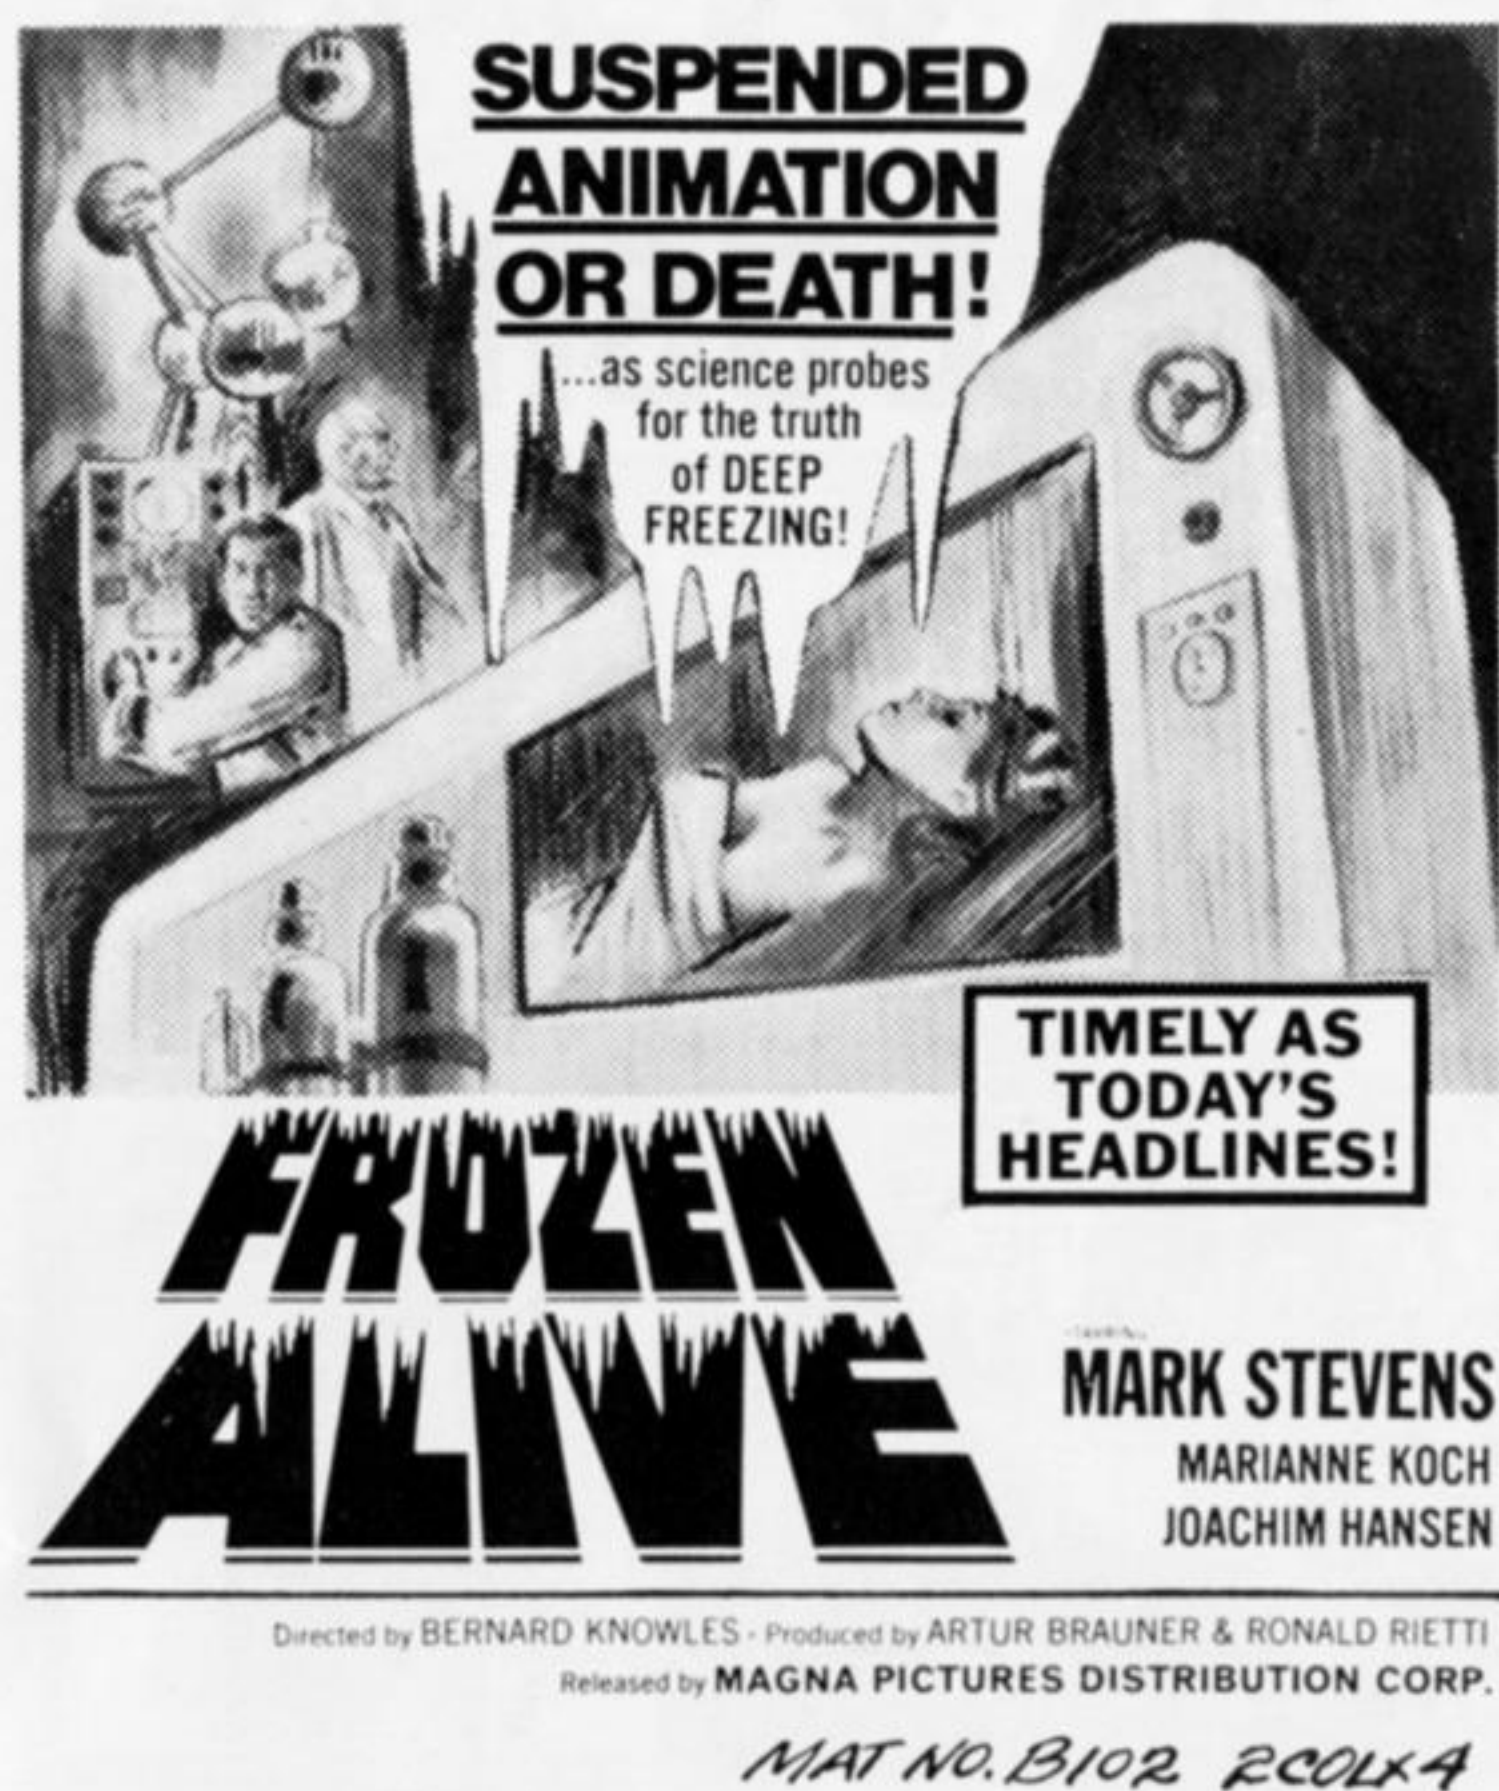

(Advance)

Two suspense-packed cinema thrillers, "Destination Inner Space," toplined by Scott Brady, and "Frozen Alive," with Mark Stevens heading cast, will open.....at the.....theatre.

The former, in color, deals with a mysterious underwater object, the attempts, with Navy help, to identify it, the subsequent emergence of a havoc-wrecking, man-like monster which attacks the scientists who first detect the weird object in which it travels, and the eventual fight to conquer the beast-like creature far beneath the surface of the sea.

The other film probes the question as to whether humans can be placed in deep-freeze for a considerable length of time, and then be brought back to life; integrated in the drama are a romance between the experimenting doctors and the fatal philandering of the wife of one.

Both films are released by Magna Pictures Distribution Corporation.

SYNOPSIS
(Not For Publication)

Navy Commander Wayne (Scott Brady) boards a civilian sea laboratory to aid scientists in identifying a moving object first detected by instrument. He meets Dr. Le Satier (Gary Merrill), chief scientist, Sandra (Sheree North), photographer, and Hugh (Mike Road), former Navy man. Mutual dislike between commander and ex-sailor is explained when Wayne charges the latter with cowardice resulting in the deaths of several sailors. Hugh admits to the accusation, but all work together to solve the mystery. The object eventually is seen to be a large powered craft, oval in shape. When it passes close to the laboratory, the latter's radio is damaged beyond repair. Later, a man-like monster emerges from the oval, wrecks the barge with which the laboratory is connected, leaving the scientists with only a 12-hour air supply; then it gains entry to the laboratory, kills a crewman, injures others, then returns to the oval. Wayne devises a way to trap the monster, but it is Hugh who sacrifices his own life in destroying the monster and saving the lives of the others, including Sandra with whom he had fallen in love.

(Not For Publication)

Two medical scientists strongly attracted to each other, Frank (Mark Stevens) and Helen (Marianne Koch), believe the deep-freezing of humans is possible. Against opposition, they set out to prove it, with Frank as the one upon whom Helen will conduct the experiment. After he becomes unconscious, police arrive at the laboratory to question him about the death of his wife, Joan (Delphi Lawrence), by gunshot. Their appearance emotionally upsets Helen and temporarily threatens continuation of the experiment. Quickly she gains control of herself, completes the experiment successfully. Meanwhile, Tony, "the other man," (Joachim Hansen), confesses to his role in Joan's death.

Delphi Lawrence portrays the philandering wife of a doctor who experiments in human deep-freeze in "Frozen Alive," now at the.....theatre with Mark Stevens heading the cast.
